Chamber event to eye 'state of community'

"The State of the Community" will be the theme of the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's Morning Edition coffee, set for Thursday, Mar. 31, at 7:30 a.m. at Scaffidi's Wheel Inn Restaurant, Highway 90, Bay St. Louis.

At this meeting, Ronnie Cuevas, president of the Hancock County Board of Supervisors, Victor Frankiewicz, Mayor, City of Bay St. Louis, and Bob Hubbard, Alderman, City of Waveland, will discuss county and city problems and objectives for 1988.

This event will be an opportunity to gather information not otherwise available, and a question and answer period will follow.

All Chamber members and their guests are urged to attend this important meeting, which is being sponsored by Gulf Publishing Company-Bay Bureau. Coffee and Danish will be provided.

Further information on the Morning Edition Coffee is available by contacting the Chamber offices at 467-8048.

DOG WARDEN Ed Abson, in cage at right, demonstrates to Waveland Mayor John Longo Jr. how the trigger in a dog trap works. Abson, who has been using the traps in Herlhey Street area, said he has been receiving inquiries regarding whether children can get into the trap, which is five feet high, 18 inches wide and 40 inches tall. While a child can get inside the trap, he can not be injured, Abson explained. The trap and a smaller version for cats, raccoons and other animals, displayed on top of the dog trap, are designed for live capture and are the only type approved by the Humane Society of the United States. He said that while the door of the trap can not be opened from the inside, no traps are ever left out overnight and all are checked within two to three hours. In addition, the traps are used only when requested and only with permission of the owners of the property where the traps are set. The Hancock County Animal Commission has two dog traps and two cat traps. The dog traps are currently being used to pick up a pack of strays that have resisted capture by other means. ## Bay-Waveland school board creates administrative position

By DENA BISNETTE

The Bay St. Louis-Waveland School District Board has decided to create a new position, administrative principal.

After an executive session of about two hours, Board Member Charles Benvenuti moved to create the position and received a unanimous vote in favor of his motion.

Benvenuti said that the duties of the administrative principal would include but may not be limited to supervision of janitorial and maintenance services for all of the school district's facilities, supervision of transportation, some involvement in curriculum planning and obtaining substitute teachers.

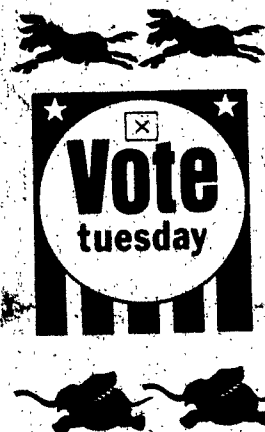

Superintendent of Education Roger Oge said the new principal would be based at the district office rather than one of the schools.

He said the purpose of creating the new job is to free the on-site principals to become more active in direct instruction.

Oge said there is "a very great demand, a major push" for someone to take over some of the duties now being handled by on-site principals

Alderman Smolensky submits resignation to Mayor Longo

By ELLIS CUEVAS

Waveland Alderman Louis Smolensky submitted his resignation, effective March 31, to Mayor John Longo on Friday.

Smolensky, now serving his third term as Waveland's Alderman of Ward Three, cited an opportunity of advancement at his place of employment as the reason for having to resign.

The alderman said he regretted to have to resign from the political office, but his new position would not give him enough time to continue his duties as alderman in the manner in which he has served the people in the past.

Smolensky stated, "I have really enjoyed serving the people of Waveland and Ward Three during the past nine and one-half years. I too, have very much appreciated the corporation I received from Mayor Longo, Aldermen Barbara Rappold, Bob Hubbard and Herman Yarborough, as we have worked together as a team to help Waveland's continued progress."

"The many city workers over the years have also been very helpful to me as an alderman, and I will always remember their important role in Waveland's growth," Smolensky added.

Longo said Friday, "I am very disappointed in Louie's leaving, as he is a very conscientious alderman and has made a lot of friends. Smolensky did well; I know I am going to miss him and I know his constituents are also."

"In his new job, I wish Louie well," Longo added.

Smolensky and his wife Jane Ferry Smolensky reside on St. Joseph Street and are the parents of a daughter Sarah, aged 10.

Smolensky is a sales representative for Charlie Henderson Ford.

Board approves enforcement

Waveland starts centennial clean-up drive

BY DENA BISNETTE
The mayor and board of aldermen of Waveland have started a clean-up campaign in observance of the city's centennial.

That could be bad news, however, for people who do not clean up their property voluntarily, Mayor John Longo Jr. said.

"We're asking people to paint up, clean up and fix up their property in honor of the centennial," Longo said.

He added that the program is tied in with a statewide beautification campaign as well as the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce Beautification Program, which is headed by Chamber Beautification Committee Chairman Ellis Cuevas.

He explained that Waveland will be able to make the job easier for people who comply because most of the debris removed from their property fits under the category of trash or household garbage.

The people will not have to pay to have it hauled away, the mayor explained, stating, "Waveland is one of the few cities in the U.S. left which still provides free trash and garbage collection."

The board asks that branches left for pick-up be bundled in short pieces, not more than three to four feet long, and that all other trash be bundled or bagged if possible.

Loose trash should not be piled in the streets, as it gets into ditches and interferes with drainage.

Another goal of the program is to have all junked vehicles removed from front yards and streets.

Longo said the aldermen have approved adjudication of property where health and safety violations are occurring. Property owners will be notified by registered letter and given 30 days in which to clean up their lots and can be fined for non-compliance.

Maximum fine is $5,000, Longo added.

In addition, junk cars can be declared a haven for rats and snakes and can be hauled away at taxpayer expense.

If the owner wishes to retrieve a vehicle that has been adjudicated a health hazard, he will have to pay any fees assessed by the wrecker service, which can sell unclaimed vehicles.

Longo also commented that the centennial celebrations the city has had so far, including presentation of the key to the city to the American Legion national commander at a breakfast at Bourgeois-Steffel-Ray

American Legion Post 77 and a red beans and rice luncheon, have been successful and have drawn good crowds.

Additional events are planned, including tree plantings, street dance, flag raising ceremonies, a family picnic in June and another centennial meal at the American Legion.

This is just a reminder to all qualified electors not to forget to vote on Tuesday.

Republican and Democratic primary elections will be held, so it is important for everyone to be sure to vote.

A lot of time we hear people complaining about the lousy job some official is doing, yet they fail to try to improve things by taking the time to vote on election day.

Wouldn't it be nice if all qualified electors took time to vote each election.

Remember the polls are open from 7 a.m. to 7 p.m.

The 1988 Centennial celebrations in the City of Waveland will long be remembered by the city's residents and visitors.

As we have mentioned before, there will be many activities taking place during the coming months.

One thing Mayor John Longo would like to see is for all residents of Waveland to clean-up, paint-up and fix-up their properties for these festivities.

The mayor knows how proud Waveland's citizens are and he is hoping everyone will cooperate in helping the city look its best this year.

Just think, Easter will be here in one week from today.

Youngsters throughout the area will be involved in Easter Egg hunts during the week.

The Hancock County Youth Commission is sponsoring an Easter Egg hunt on Saturday, April 2, at 2 p.m. in City Hall.

The event is open to boys and girls 10 years old and under.

Special arrangements have been made for an appearance by the Easter Bunny, so parents may want to bring a camera along.

There will be a State of the Community Breakfast Meeting on Thursday morning 7:30 a.m. at Scafidi's Wheel Inn Restaurant, US-90, Bay St. Louis.

This Chamber of Commerce-sponsored event will include representatives from the Hancock County Board of Supervisors and cities of Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

This would be a good time for our residents to hear discussion on our city and county problems, plus objectives for 1988 and years to come.

We hope you will attend this important meeting.

Parent impressed by visit to senior high school

Report card time again! Having a son at Bay High is a new and very rewarding experience for me.

I have a 20-year-old in a junior college in Georgia. I've been through the ropes once. What I am experiencing now, here in this small coastal town, has really restored my faith in our educational system.

Strolling through the halls on a recent evening visit to the school, listening to each teacher's remarks they talked about my son as if they knew him as well as I do.

My son is not an A-B student, but for the first time since my oldest attended McComb elementary schools have I seen such interest and dedication to the student.

If all the educators at Bay High are on the ball like the five I talked with that evening, I truly feel confident about this school system.

As a veteran of five, yes, five school systems, Bay St. Louis is excellent.

From this mother's point of view, the educators and students are on the same, positive, communication level.

The interest and excitement of learning was evident in both teacher and student.

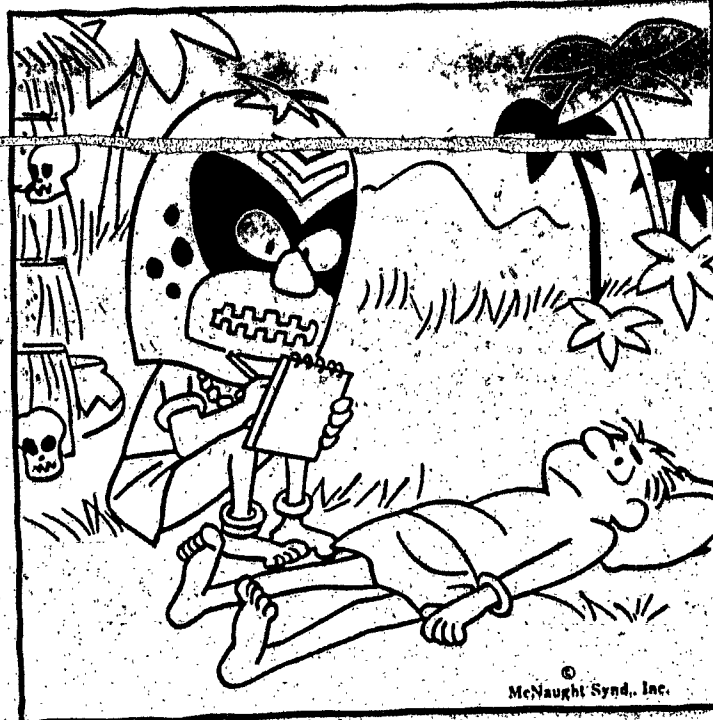

This point of view was verified by being accompanied by another parent of a student in a lower grade.

Her comments rang like an echo in the car on the way home.

For those parents who missed out on this experience, let me say that I got a good night's sleep knowing all is well at Bay Senior High School.

ASK OCHSNER

Q. I've been hearing a lot lately about cholesterol in the blood and its primary role in causing coronary heart disease. What is cholesterol and what would be an acceptable level of cholesterol? Mrs. TAC, Bossier City, La.

A. Dr. Bruce R. Leslie, a specialist in the section of hypertensive diseases at Ochsner Clinic in New Orleans, says that cholesterol and triglycerides, also known as lipids, are fatty substances in the blood, which can influence the incidence of cardiovascular disease.

There are two kinds of cholesterol. Both travel in the blood as fat-and-protein units called lipoproteins. One can help reduce the amount of excess cholesterol clogging the blood vessels. This is called high-density lipoprotein, or HDL, and is the "good guy" of the two.

The other is called low-density lipoprotein, or LDL, and encourages cholesterol buildup in the coronary arteries and elsewhere. Dr. Leslie repeat test and the average of the two test results will then be used to guide subsequent decisions.

Patients with high blood cholesterol, those 240 and above, and those borderline cases, 200 to 239, who have two or more other risk factors such as hypertension, obesity, diabetes, etc., should have an analysis of their lipoproteins to determine the LDL or "bad guy" cholesterol levels in the blood.

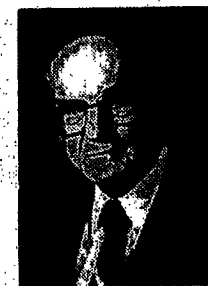

Treatment usually begins with dietary therapy supervised by registered dietitians and designed to reduce the intake of saturated fats and cholesterol. In cases where dietary therapy has not had the desired effect of reducing cholesterol levels, drug therapy is then considered.

REPORT TO MISSISSIPPIANS

FARM INDUSTRY SEES HOPE IN UPWARD TRENDS

Recent reports of growing farm exports, increased crop and livestock prices and rising land value have been the cause of guarded optimism about the future of the agricultural economy in farm regions across the country. Certainly, these upward trends are good cause for encouragement after more than a decade of bad news on the agricultural front.

However, while progress has been made, American agriculture continues to face problems. Numerous farmers, both in Mississippi and across the nation, are still struggling to stay alive and much remains to be done to make the farm industry a viable, thriving entity.

1987 has been generally viewed as a good year for agriculture. In Mississippi, increases in cotton production and higher prices for livestock, in addition to continued growth in the thriving catfish industry, enabled many farmers to turn the corner toward better times. Of course, one year of good crops is not an immediate solution; several years of economic growth are needed to make a lasting difference.

Despite the upward trends, however, thousands of farmers continue to be in deep financial trouble. Officials of the Mississippi Department of Agriculture and Commerce project that more than 3000 Mississippi farmers will face foreclosure this year, with an additional 4000 farmers struggling with delinquent loans.

Under legislation passed by Congress in December, the federal government provided financial stability to the ailing Farm Credit System - including the Federal Land Banks and Production Credit Associations. The legislation pumped $4 billion into the Farm Credit System by authorizing the issuance of 15-year bonds which will minimize annual federal outlays. Under the legislation, the Farm Credit System is required to pay back both principal and interest on the bonds.

In addition, the Farmers Home Administration was directed to do everything possible to restructure farm loans, including a partial write-off of a grower's debt, to keep farmers on their land. While new regulations are still in the process of being developed, early reports say new rules could relieve farmers of the burden of up to $7 billion in bad debts. The action could help prevent 100,000 farmers from going out of business and could allow thousands who failed in the last decade to get back into business.

An important aspect of this proposal is that the write-offs would not affect the budget deficit because Farmers Home was never expected to be able to recover the $7 billion owed to it by tens of thousands of farmers who are delinquent in their payments.

While this proposal would be a help to many farmers, much remains to be done to help the farm economy. We must work to open additional world markets for our farm products. Progress has been seen on the trade imbalance, but there continues to be great room for improvement. In addition, we must work with our major trading partners to decrease foreign subsidies for agricultural products so that U.S. farmers can be more competitive in world markets.

Throughout the years, farming has been the backbone of our society - especially in Mississippi. Farming continues to play a vital part in our national economic program. We must be certain that we do all we can to enable this vital industry to survive these pressing times.

The President's Column

Central America and the Caribbean are the focus of the 50th anniversary celebration of the United States.

There was a nice celebration of St. Patrick's Day on Capitol Hill, but I believe that was not the only reason I knew I had to visit Central America. I had some strong words for some of our lawmakers.

The first has to do with the safety of our hemisphere. Back in the early 1980s, there were those who argued that the prospects for democracy in Central America were bleak, and we would do little to prevent Marxist dictatorships there. But after the Administration built a consensus, Congress finally passed our economic and military aid program, and today the countries of Costa Rica, El Salvador, Honduras, and Guatemala are democratic. Indeed El Salvador, the nation some in Congress were gloomiest about, has just hosted congressional and municipal elections, just one more sign of a successful democratic reform in that nation and region.

However, in one Central American nation, Nicaragua, the cause of freedom is in grave peril. Up until the end of February, the United States has been aiding the freedom fighters who have been trying to restore democracy by resisting the regime of the Soviet-backed Sandinista Communists. However, just as the heroic efforts of the democratic resistance have forced the Communists to cut back on their aggression abroad and to make peace concessions, the Congress, in a close vote, decided to cut off aid to the freedom fighters.

Since the Congress rejected our package of assistance for those fighting for freedom in Nicaragua, the Communist dictators have done exactly as we predicted. Instead of "giving peace a chance," the aid cutoff is giving the Communist dictators a chance, a chance they long hoped for, a chance to smash their opponents. They have hardened their negotiating position; they have fired the mediator, Cardinal Obando y Bravo; they have sent mobs of thugs against peaceful opposition groups. And now, instead of negotiating for a cease-fire, they have launched a major military assault on the weakened Contras-invading democratic Honduras in the process.

From the beginning, our Central American policy has been designed to prevent another Cuba and to let the people of Nicaragua win back their freedom and their independence from the Soviet Union on their own—to do this without having another vital security matter where the Congress has not been doing its job has involved our work on a strategic defense against ballistic missiles. Mar. 23, 1988 marked the fifth anniversary of my call for just such a Strategic Defense Initiative, or SDI. I am taking this occasion to note that the Soviets have been making extensive progress on their own SDI-like program in the last few years. Indeed, the Soviets may be preparing a nationwide defense—which would mean a breakout from the restrictions of the ABM treaty which prohibits a massive deployment of such a system.

However, at the very moment when the Soviets are so far along in their efforts, Congress has been cutting back ours. Every year Congress has cut the SDI budget. We are now one to two years behind schedule. And this despite the fact that the actual SDI program is progressing faster than we expected. But our scientists and engineers must have Congress' support. And they must have it soon.

I cannot think of two more vital national security issues than these: preventing the establishment of a Soviet beachhead in Central America and erecting a defense shield that will reduce the nuclear threat that has so overshadowed the post-war era. That is why we cannot permit some in Congress to take dangerous risks with America's national security.

The People's Business

From Mississippi Economic Council

LEGISLATURE EXAMINES COUNTY UNIT

A House County Affairs subcommittee is considering legislation that addresses the problem of inefficiency in county government in Mississippi.

Eric Clark of Taylorville, chairman of the subcommittee, said the lawmakers will take up bills which mandate the unit system for county governments, as well as bills which would enable the public to vote on the issue.

The Mississippi Economic Council has called upon the 1988 Legislature to enact legislation providing for mandatory unit operations in every county. In addition, Governor Ray Mabus has made the mandatory unit system one of his key legislative objectives for the 1988 session.

Studies of county road operations point to the loss of millions of dollars under the inefficient district or "beat" system. Under the beat system, the county operates five separate road programs—one for each supervisor's district—rather than one county-wide system which would prove less costly and more efficient.

Under the unit system, county road operations would be managed for the benefit of the county as a whole, with decisions made on the basis of the needs of each district. Features of the unit system include employment of a road manager by the board of supervisors, planning and budgeting for the county as a whole, central purchasing, a unified accounting system, and uniform employment practices.

Mississippians are demanding efficiency in county government and the most efficient form of county government is the unit system. The Legislature should take the will of the people into consideration and make county unit mandatory in every county in the state.

Sweet potatoes, music, shipbuilding featured on 'Mississippi Roads'

The humble sweet potato, the mellow latin strains of the marimba and a voyage through Gulf Coast history are featured this week on "Mississippi Roads," Tuesday, Mar. 29, at 7:30 p.m. on Mississippi ETV. "Mississippi Roads" takes viewers to the Sweet Potato Capitol of the World, Vardaman, for the annual Sweet Potato Festival. Sweet potato specialist Benny Graves of the MSU Agriculture Department, Vardaman mayor Billy Paul Spencer, sweet potato farmer Russell Penick and local pharmacist John Jasper Adams explain how this humble tuber is rooted in the history and economic development of Vardaman.

Viewers also go backstage during the Sweet Potato Queen pageant and meet former queen Morgan Spencer, 1986 Sweet Potato Queen Paula Hawkins and 1988 Miss Tiny Tot Sweet Potato Queen Lori Todd. "Roads" then goes out into the sweet potato field to visit with Cassandra Woodward and Joan Easley, two Vardaman teenagers who help with the harvest, and Sallie Beck, a longtime Vardaman resident, who explains the difference between a yam and a sweet potato.

Finally, "Roads" visits the kitchen of Jo Parker as she creates her award-winning Sweet Potato Baklava and tells how the sweet potato is being used in a growing number of recipes.

In another stop along "Mississippi Roads," Stevie Wonder's hit song "I Just Called To Say I Love You" is performed by Mississippi Valley State University's Marimba Orchestra as "Roads" travels to the campus in Itta Bena. Orchestra Director Ricky Burkhead explains how the marimba has made a delightfully mellow contribution to the school's music department.

On its final stop of the evening, "Mississippi Roads" journeys to Pascagoula for a look at the "Governor Stone," an antique supply ship that was recently returned to Mississippi for restoration. Viewers meet boatwright Joe Frederic as he works on the restoration, and Melody Bradley, chairman of the "Governor Stone" restoration committee, who explains how the ship will one day serve as a living history exhibit.

"Roads" then travels forward in time to tour Ingalls Shipbuilding. Den Knecht, Vice-President of Public and Industrial Relations, shows viewers how modular construction techniques have made the facility a pioneer in shipbuilding efficiency.

"Mississippi Roads" is underwritten by Chevron U.S.A. Inc.

Highway Department director chairs national committee

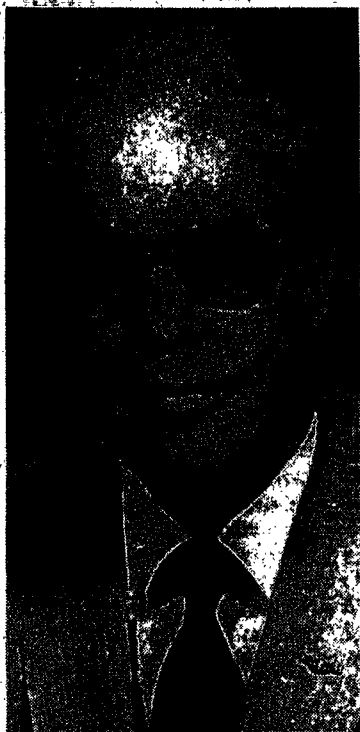

John R. Tabb, director of the Mississippi State Highway Department, has been named chairman of the Executive Committee of the Strategic Highway Research Program (SHRP), a national program devoted to highway research. The announcement of Tabb's appointment was made recently by Dr. Frank Press, president of the National Academy of Sciences, which established SHRP as an entity of its National Research Council. The SHRP focuses on the following high-priority areas: asphalt, long-term pavement performance, maintenance cost-effectiveness, protection of concrete bridge components, cement and concrete in highway pavements and structures and chemical control of snow and ice on highways.

Tabb is a former vice president and president of the American Association of State Highway and Transportation Officials (AASHTO).

He currently serves on the AASHTO Executive Committee and several other AASHTO committees.

Tabb has been employed with the Mississippi State Highway Department since 1957 and has risen through the ranks to his current position.

NSTL sets test firing

A newly-modified test position at NASA's National Space Technology Laboratories will be put into service for the first time this weekend when a space shuttle main engine is ignited for 1.5 seconds.

This initial firing will complete the activation of the B-1 test position, giving NSTL a third capability for testing shuttle main engines. Single-engine tests are also conducted on NSTL test stands designated A-1 and A-2.

The new B-1 position occupies half of the dual test stand, which was originally constructed and used to test the Saturn V first stages which transported Apollo astronauts to the moon.

After successful completion of the Apollo program, the B-2 position was then modified for test firings of the shuttle's main propulsion system.

The B-2 position will be maintained for possible future space shuttle main engine cluster firings, and may be available for other agency or national uses.

Throughout the Apollo era of the 1960s and the subsequent shuttle program, the B-1 portion of the test stand was never activated. Modification work for its new role began in November 1986 and was completed in 1987. Total cost was approximately $9 million, representing the largest single construction effort undertaken at NSTL since the early 1970s when A-1 and B-2 were modified from Saturn to the shuttle test configuration.

The new position, like the A-2 test stand, contains a diffuser which simulates space flight altitude conditions during firings. This diffuser allows engineers to throttle the engine at various power levels to simulate a realistic operating condition. B-1 will also be used to test development engines.

The test will employ engine 2206 and will be the first of five firings that will check out the B-1 position for full operational use. The 1.5 second firing will be followed by tests of 25, 220, 350 and 520 seconds in duration.

According to Jerry Smelser, deputy engine projects manager for the Marshall Space Flight Center in Huntsville, Ala., "Bringing this new test stand on-line will provide us with a significant additional testing capacity during a critical period for the engine testing program."

It will make a positive difference in our ability to complete the certification and acceptance testing of engine hardware for the shuttle's return to flight."

Jack Rogers, manager of NSTL's engineering and propulsion test support office, said, "We are proud of the government-contractor team here at NSTL that completed this important project in a timely manner. This new test position will play an important role in our future space shuttle missions."

due to higher accreditation standards.

He called creation of the position "a sound educational practice."

The board did not make any statements regarding when someone would be named to the new administrative slot.

In other business Friday, the board heard a report from Architect Fred Wagner regarding the next project to be bid in the district's building program.

The project, renovations at North Bay Elementary School and Bay Junior High School, will be advertised for bids with to be opened at 2 p.m. April 18.

Wagner, who said he would be "surprised if we don't have 13 or 14 bidders," went over the renovation plans for the board.

At the junior high, the renovations will include air conditioning for the academic section of the main building and the S.J. Ingram Building; an enlargement of a covered walkway on the side of the main building facing the Ingram building and installation of a new covered walkway from the main building to the food service area; and installation of handicapped ramps for access to the main building's first floor and the gymnasium.

First-floor restrooms are also going to be modified to provide handicapped facilities and the first-floor hallways will be carpeted. Wooden floors in the second-floor halls and individual classrooms were in good shape and will not have to be replaced, the architect said.

The home economics area will eventually become the library, but that work will be delayed because the junior high will continue being used for the same grades levels as present, sixth, seventh and eighth, for a year after renovations and the home economics equipment will be needed.

In addition, the Ingram building will be expanded from six classrooms to eight classrooms and restroom facilities will be completely redone, Wagner explained.

At North Bay, the area now being used as an office will become an administrative suite and two classrooms will be combined to form a new library. In addition, some restrooms will have to be added for kindergarten and handicapped facilities and all windows will have to be replaced.

Also on Friday, Oge asked the board to consider authorizing the school district to provide sites for community information sessions on topics of general interest such as drug abuse, AIDS, child abuse and communicable diseases in schools.

Oge said the programs would utilize outside resource people as well as some school district personnel.

The board endorsed the idea but did not take official action because the proposal is still in draft form.

ETV explores historic locations

"Mississippi Roads" explores historic locations in Jackson, Oxford and Blue Mountain Tuesday, Apr. 5, at 7:30 p.m. on Mississippi ETV.

In the evening's opening segment, "Mississippi Roads" profiles Jackson artist and mural painter Lawrence Jones. Best known in Mississippi for his mural in the Music Hall at Jackson State University, Jones discusses his interpretation of events surrounding the building and development of the university, as well as his long teaching career.

Next, "Roads" travels to Oxford for its Sesquicentennial. Longtime residents Will Lewis and Mrs. Marvel Sisk use old photographs to contrast Oxford's past and present. Viewers visit William Faulkner's home, Rowan Oak, and meet curator Howard Habr, who tells of Faulkner's literary influence on Oxford. Authors Barry Hannah and Dorothy Abbott explain the life of a writer in Oxford and the current literary atmosphere of the community.

Oxford is also the home of the University of Mississippi, and "Roads" takes viewers to some of the gathering places currently enjoyed by the students. The Hoka is a popular establishment that offers food, talk and late-night theater. Its owner, Ron Shapiro, discusses the interests and attitudes of the university students. Another popular stop is Square Books. Owner Howard Bahr takes viewers on a tour of this unique two-story bookstore, where customers can enjoy sandwiches and drinks upstairs and browse through the selection of books downstairs.

On its final stop of the evening, "Mississippi Roads" journeys to Blue Mountain for a Psalm-singing at the Ebenezer Associate Reformed Presbyterian Church. Church member Thomas H. Stewart discusses the history and traditions of Mississippi's oldest ARP church, which was organized in 1842. Until 1972, Ebenezer Church adhered to exclusive psalmody, permitting only metrical psalms to be sung at worship services.

Weekly State Crop Report Covering Week of March 12-18

Peach producers do battle with freeze

STARKVILLE—Mississippi peaches survived the freeze this week, but as cold weather continues, the crop could be threatened again. The freeze killed the blooms set by the peach trees, hitting the orchards in south Mississippi the hardest. Those trees were blooming 10 days ahead of schedule when the cold front hit.

How many peaches will be lost because of bloom damage is not yet known. Peach trees set three times as many blooms as they need to make fruit. They can lose a certain percentage of their blooms and still set a full crop.

"What we don't know in south Mississippi is what percentage of total bloom the trees were in," said Dr. Freddie Rasberry, horticulturist with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. "We lost our insurance—our extra buds—but we think we can say we have a good opportunity for a full crop at this point in time."

The battle to save the crop could be more crucial in the next two weeks as more buds begin to bloom. The trees begin to bloom more rapidly with the advent of spring and spring rains.

As the buds bloom and set fruit at a faster rate, they become more susceptible to damage from late freezes. "If the temperature stays above 25 degrees, the crop can get through the worst part," Rasberry said. "We can't stand below that."

Growers have weathered cold damage in 1985 and 1986. Last year's surprise freeze in April killed the crop because the fruit had set. The state's peach producers, however, remain undaunted in their efforts to keep their industry going.

"It takes a lot out of our producers to grow a peach, but they're going to grow them," Rasberry said.

In other agricultural news, wheat and forages are benefiting from rain. Wet weather and wet fields have halted planting in some areas.

"We have finally gotten corn planting started this week, so spring must be near," said William Craft, Amite County agent.

Better Eating for Better Health

The American Red Cross Nutrition program "Better Eating for Better Health" ended Friday, Mar. 11, with seven completing the six part series. Attending the classes were Barbara Loyd, Pass Christian; Helen Stanley, Bay St. Louis; Wanda Berthelot, Lakeshore; Pat Ellis, Waveland; La Rose Eddy, Diamondhead; Tommie Ziegler, Waveland and Gloria May, Lakeshore.

The participants kept a 3 day food diary that was analyzed in class. Using the food wheel they learned to plan nutritious meals for themselves and their families. The main difference between their nutrition classes and this program is that students have the opportunity in class to put into practice what they've learned.

Other subjects covered are reading food labels, food additives, reducing fats, sugars and sodium in the diet, use of vitamins, mineral supplements, nutrition requirements during each stage of the life cycle, modifying favorite recipes, how to judge diets and incorporating exercise and diet to maintain a healthy weight.

Let yogurt ease your guilt about desserts.

Americans are notorious for over-indulging in rich creamy desserts. Unfortunately, these are usually high in calories, fat and cholesterol and low in nutrients.

In order to satisfy a sweet tooth without abandoning healthy eating practices, yogurt can be substituted in recipes calling for cream, cream cheese or sour cream. The yogurt is an acceptable substitute to maintain the taste of the recipe and will add extra calcium as well as reduce the fat, calories and cholesterol.

In comparing yogurt to other high calories high fat dairy products, note that low fat plain yogurt contains 100 calories per cup and no grams of fat. Sour cream has 415 calories per cup with 40 grams of fat. Cream cheese has 790 calories per cup and 79 grams of fat. Heavy cream has 830 calories per cup and 90 grams of fat. Try substituting low-fat, plain yogurt in chilled dessert recipes for all or part of the high-fat, high-calories ingredients.

Some additional ideas for cutting down on calories and fat by using yogurt are as follows:

- Top Belgian waffles and fill crepes with a scoop of vanilla or fruit flavored yogurt instead of ice cream, fruit preserves, whipped cream or rich sauces.
- Make a sundae by substituting yogurt for ice cream. Top with fresh fruit and sprinkle with blanched almonds. Another option is to create a banana split by cutting a banana lengthwise, placing in a dish and covering with slices of fresh strawberries and whole blueberries. Top with banana or other fruit flavored yogurt.

- Use a scoop of yogurt on spice cake, pound cake or angel food cake.
- Drizzle hot fudge over a cup of plain, vanilla or coffee-flavored yogurt for a special health dessert.

Try this apricot chiffon pie for a light and luscious spring dessert with only 185 calories per serving. (4 grams fat - 15 milligrams cholesterol).

Apricot Chiffon Pie

1 prepared graham cracker pie shell.
1 (16 oz.) can apricots in light syrup.

1 envelope unflavored gelatin
1 cup vanilla yogurt.
2 eggs whites (not 2 cups)
¼ cup sugar
Dash nutmeg

Drain apricots and reserve ¼ cup of juice. In a food processor or blender, puree apricots until very smooth.

In a small saucepan, sprinkle the gelatin over the reserved juice and let stand 1 to 2 minutes, until softened. Over low heat, warm the mixture until just dissolved. Using a small wire whisk, gradually beat the gelatin mixture into the pureed apricots. Fold in the yogurt.

In a medium bowl, combine the egg whites and sugar. Place the bowl over a pan of hot, not simmering water and whisk until mixture is hot and the sugar has dissolved. Remove the bowl from the pan and using a hand-held electric mixer set at medium speed, beat the egg whites until cool and a thick, white meringue has formed. Gently fold ½ of the meringue into the fruit mixture. Lighten, then add the rest. Gently stir in a dash of nutmeg. Pour into the prepared pie shell

ASCS Reports

Conservation plan required for highly erodible land

Highly erodible land that was not used for agricultural purposes before 1901 and has since been converted to an agricultural commodity without an approved conservation system, Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Harad County ASCS Office, said. The conservation compliance requirement will apply to all highly erodible land in annual crop production by Jan. 1, 1990.

"Farmers who now cultivate highly erodible land without an approved conservation plan or produce crops of converted wetlands that are not exempt will be ineligible for farm program benefits on any land they own, operate or have an interest in as a producer," Gennin said.

He said the conservation plan includes specific, practical, cost-effective measures that will allow farmers to produce crops without excessive erosion.

The Food Security Act of 1985 gives producers who have highly erodible land three options:

1. Produce agricultural commodities on the land without using an approved conservation plan and lose eligibility for covered USDA programs.

2. Apply conservation plans developed by the Soil Conservation Service that will reduce excessive erosion of highly erodible cropland and retain eligibility for USDA programs.

3. Apply to enroll highly erodible land in the Conservation Reserve Program provided they meet program criteria.

Gennin said farmers producing agricultural crops on highly erodible land during the period 1901 through 1995 have until Jan. 1, 1990, to implement an approved conservation plan on the land.

Conservation plans usually include measures such as contouring, terracing, grassed waterways and other measures necessary to control severe erosion problems.

Cast announced for Waveland production of 'Greater Tuna'

'Greater Tuna,' the next production of The Waveland Players, was originally performed with two men who portrayed the 12 men and seven women making up the cast.

But director Ted G. Stechmann Jr. has chosen to expand the roles to take advantage of the many talented amateur thespians in the community—and to save wear and tear on the costumes coordinator, he said.

'Greater Tuna' is a comedy about life in Tuna—Texas' third smallest town—as it revolves around and is reported by Radio Station OKKK. Residents of Tuna include such diverse characters as Bertha Bumiller, president of the BBB (Better Baptist Bureau); Didi Snavely, proprietor of Didi's House of Used Weapons; and animal rights advocate Petey Fisk. Station OKKK focuses on such newsworthy events as the winners of the junior high American Heritage Essay Contest, where the first-place winner wrote about 'Human Rights, Why Bother?' and the second-place winner wrote about 'Living with Radiation.'

The station also promotes the Tuna Little Theatre production of 'My Fair Lady,' set in Polynesia because the financially-strapped organization is forced to re-use the costumes from an earlier production of 'South Pacific.' The roles of Station OKKK hosts Thurston Wheelis and Arles Struvie are being played by Allen Nunley and Michael Hamm.

Other cast members are Joyce Marie Ohman, Glenda Coss, Catherine Ohman, Don George, Jackie Taylor, Carl Danna, Mary Ellen Griffin, Ed W. Scanlan Jr., Ed Craig, Don Attilio, Dottie Overal, Marjorie Thomas-Hall, Al Carlson, Al Becker, Eugene Farve and Stechmann.

'Greater Tuna' will be presented at 8:15 p.m. on April 7, 8 and 9 at Bay St. Louis Little Theatre on Boardman Avenue in Bay St. Louis. Tickets are $4 at the door.

On Saturday, April 16, there will be a special dinner-theatre production of the play at Dock of the Bay on Beach Boulevard in Bay St. Louis, with dinner at 6:30 p.m. and curtain at 8.

Cost of the dinner show is $15 per person. For reservations, call 467-9940. The part of R. R. Snavely will be played by Hank Rodrigue on April 7-9. For the dinner show, the role will be picked up by Jerry Fisher, owner/operator of Dock of the Bay.

The Waveland show is being co-produced by Joyce Ohman and Sally Rodrigue.

UNO Opera Theater to set 'The Medium' in 1936 New Orleans

The University of New Orleans Opera Theater will present Gian Carlo Menotti's "The Medium" on Apr. 15 and 16 at 8 p.m. and Apr. 17 at 3 p.m., in the UNO Performing Arts Center Recital Hall.

"The Medium," directed by Raquel Cortina and conducted by David Nelson, was composed by Menotti in 1945. It will be sung in English with full orchestra.

The cast will consist of UNO graduate and undergraduate students in vocal performance. Madame Flora, the medium, will be portrayed by mezzo soprano, Kathryn Barnes-Burroughs.

Soprano Penny Rubinfield sings the role of Monica, the medium's daughter and John Aleman is Toby, a deaf mute. Alexander Todd, Deanna Douglas and Meelle Kemp, are the three clients who attend the medium's seances.

Set designer for the opera is Darrell Eik, with lighting by Davis Barren, costumes by Carla Pendergrass and make-up by Joe Marino.

"Despite its eerie setting and gruesome conclusions, 'The Medium' is actually a play of ideas. It describes the tragedy of a woman caught between two worlds, a world of reality which she cannot fully comprehend, and a supernatural world in which she cannot believe," said Menotti.

"She has no scruples in cheating her clients, tricking them with the fraudulent apparitions and contrived phonema, until something happens which she herself has not prepared."

Instead of the usual setting of the opera, a squalid room in a flat on the outskirts of a great city, the UNO production will be set in New Orleans in 1936. This year was chosen because Menotti's idea to compose this opera occurred then.

"The set will have a mini St. Joseph Altar instead of the tiny statue of the Virgin and the puppets in the little puppet theater will resemble voodoo dolls. The backdrop will depict a French Quarter street," said Cortina.

"In doing this, we are trying to evoke the different cults and faiths, in existence in the city of New Orleans at that time, influenced by Marie Laveau's voodooism of the 1880's and its mixture with the spiritualism and the Catholic religion."

The medium's house will depict all of these cults and faiths meshed into one, thus portraying the consternation, bewilderment and the turmoil of its inhabitants, she said.

Ticket prices are $10 for general admission, $8 students and UNO faculty and staff, and $5 for children. Tickets can be purchased by calling the UNO music department at 286-6381, and at the door.

ETV Briefs

FACING EVIL

Mississippi ETV presents this landmark event on "Moyers: Facing Evil" at 9 p.m., Monday, Mar. 28.

Hosted by journalist Bill Moyers, the special is an intimate look at an unprecedented gathering—whose theme was taken from the pioneering psychoanalyst C.G. Jung. "The only real danger that exists is man himself," Jung wrote.

Among the participants at the "Understanding Evil" conference were poet Maya Angelou; psychiatrist M. Scott Peck; professor and former congresswoman Barbara Jordan; and Holocaust scholar Raul Hilberg.

"Facing Evil" is a fascinating and provocative study of the evil, and the goodness in all of us," says Moyers. "How are we to understand the evil of the 20th century? I think one way is through the people who have experienced it."

Millions of Homes Are Due For Improvements

About 44-million of the estimated 65-million single-family homes in the United States are at least 17 years old. This means that millions of homes are prime candidates for home improvement projects, says the Vinyl Siding Institute.

This assessment is supported by Census Bureau figures, which show that homeowner expenditures on maintenance and improvements have grown steadily in the last few years.

In 1984, for instance, homeowners spent $69.8-billion on upkeep or modernization projects. In 1985, such spending rose to $80.3-billion and in 1986 to $91.3-billion. Last year it rose to an estimated $102.9-billion. This year, experts predict a record $114.6-billion will be spent on remodeling. That's a growth rate of better than 10 percent a year over four years.

Reasons For Growth

Though two-thirds of the nation's housing stock is at least 17 years old, age isn't the only reason behind the steady growth in the home improvement industry. Other factors at work include:

- Many young couples priced out of the new home market by high prices choose to buy and fix up existing homes.

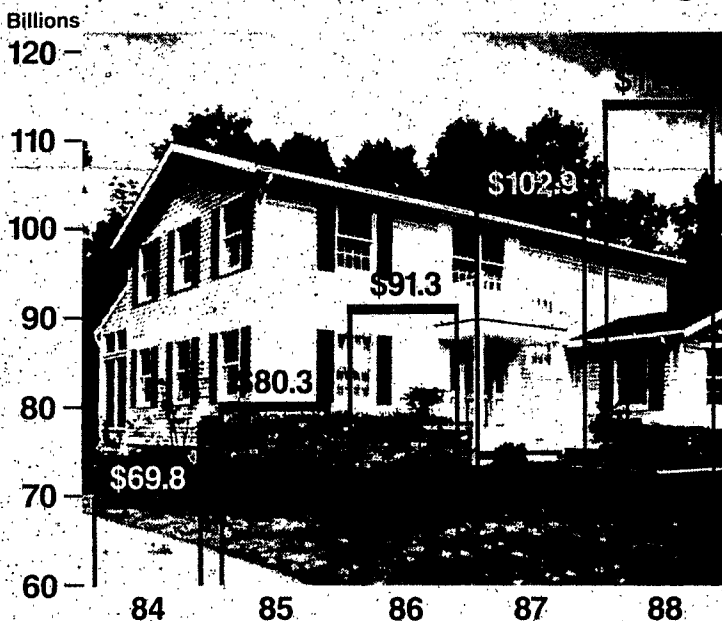

- Empty nesters—older couples whose children have left home—trade in their three or four bedroom homes for smaller models with one or two bedrooms. They usually have lots of money to spend on remodeling to make their new home exactly the way they want it.

No matter what their age, people in the market for an existing home are looking for homes that feature products that are as durable and easy to care for as they are attractive. One such project is solid vinyl siding.

Suitable for virtually all architectural styles, vinyl siding can be used to update a traditional home while retaining its architectural integrity. Especially appealing when seeking to maintain the esthetic appeal of Colonial and Federalist clapboard homes because it can be installed over most existing sidewalls, vinyl siding offers durable protection against the elements, yet requires minimal upkeep.

Since it has color throughout, there's no surface color to wear off. This means the cost and bother of

Annual Dollar Volume in Home Remodeling

The amount of money homeowners are spending on home improvements has risen steadily over the last few years. An expected $114.6-billion will be spent this year. The reasons for such spending, says the Vinyl Siding Institute, are an aging housing stock, aging homeowners trading down and young couples fixing up the place instead of moving.

painting every few years is eliminated. Available in a range of colors to blend or contrast with other exterior color elements in a home, vinyl siding does not corrode, peel, pit or rust. To remain new looking, all it usually requires is an occasional rinse with mild detergent and water.

Vinyl siding also comes in a variety of clapboard widths, in horizontal or vertical styles, and in smooth or woodgrain textures. A complete line of low-maintenance accessories, such as shutters, gutters, downspouts, fascia, soffits and other trim can be combined with vinyl siding to give an existing home the look of status.

More information is available in a booklet entitled, "What Homeowners Want to Know About Solid Vinyl Siding." To get a free copy, send a stamped, self-addressed, business-size envelope to VSI, 355 Lexington Ave., New York, N.Y. 10017.

INNOVATIVE WAY TO PROTECT YOUR HANDS

Summer means gardening, house-cleaning and car repairs, but sometimes cleaning up afterwards can take longer than your chores.

Try a product like Elmer's Invisible Glove, a protective cream for hands and nails that shields them from dirt, grease, grime, paint and stain.

Because the product is non-greasy, it provides an anti-slip grip. Use it before starting artwork, construction, painting, staining or any messy job; grime will wash away easily with just soap and water. It's also non-allergenic and non-toxic.

ANYONE CAN SPACKLE CRACKS IN WALLS

Why wait for a professional to fix that crack in your wall? You can do it in two simple steps at a very low cost. Just fill the crack with an acrylic latex spackling compound.

Home-grown vegetables are a great way to enjoy nature's bounty

Imagine picking fresh, homegrown tomatoes almost without having to get up out of your chair. You can. All you need are some tubs and boxes, a few inexpensive supplies and a little Tender Loving Care to produce baskets of food.

How do you do this? The method is called container gardening. Container gardening can satisfy your instinct for working the good earth and extracting its bounty, even if you have little or no property.

Once started, you will find that it offers a lifetime of learning and enjoyment.

Years of enjoyment

As you contemplate what to grow, take a look at some of the special varieties of vegetables developed by the seed companies for container gardening.

They are called bush-type or restricted vine vegetables, and varieties include squash, tomatoes, cucumbers, peppers, melons and eggplants. Anything except jumbo varieties will grow beautifully in a well-tended container.

If you're ambitious, you can grow a whole salad garden in one balcony box. For example, center a container with onions, surround the onions with leaf lettuce, and edge with radishes.

If you don't want to get that complicated, you can just plant a ring of leaf lettuce, spinach or cabbage around a single tomato plant.

Crops not recommended for containers are corn and watermelon. They'll grow, but they won't produce enough to make it worth the effort.

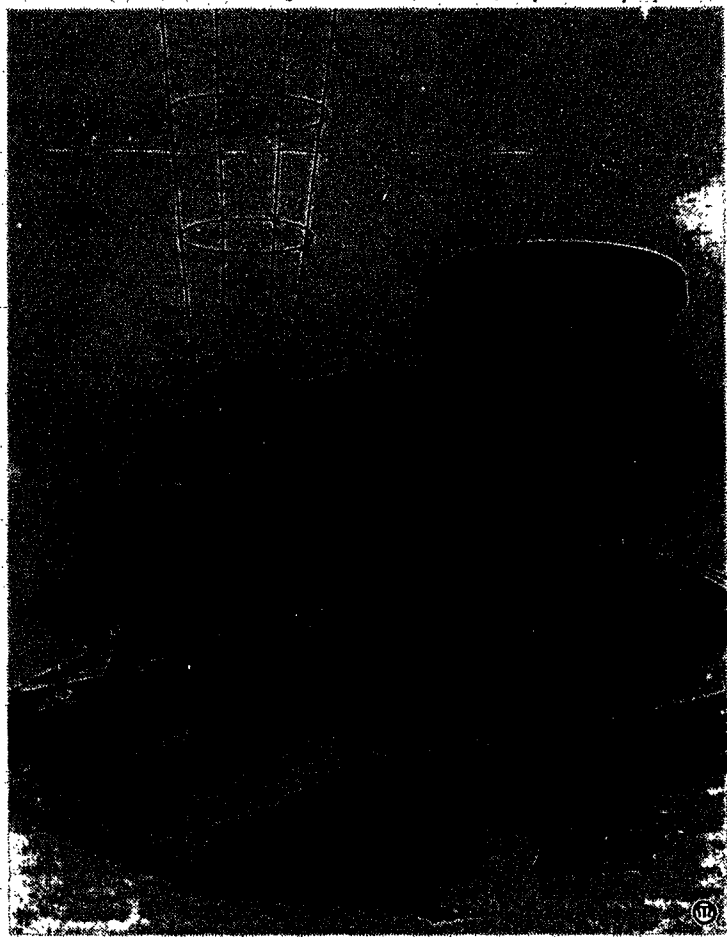

When selecting containers, go with big ones (approx. 16 inches deep) made of plastic or wood. The extra depth will allow more room for vigorous root growth. Plastic or wood containers are cheaper and hold moisture better.

Make sure your containers have holes in the bottom to allow excess water to escape. Cover the holes with some screen or broken pottery before adding growing medium.

Locate your containers where they'll get a minimum of six hours of sun each day.

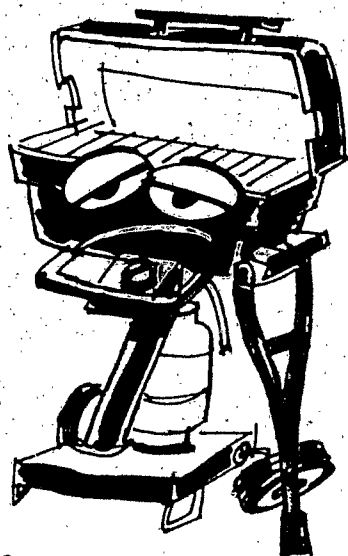

Growing medium is probably the key element for successful container-grown vegetables. Buy specially prepared commercial soil mixes. These mixes are sterile and free from soil-borne diseases.

INGREDIENTS FOR CONTAINER GARDENING SUCCESS—Large containers, with room for roots; water-soluble fertilizer to keep up with plants' nutritional needs; watering can for frequent waterings and to apply plant food; soil-less growing medium or sterile potting mix for excellent drainage and freedom from disease; seeds; tomato cages or stakes to stabilize large plants, vines.

There's More to Windows Than What You Can See

The material from which a window is made can be just as important as its appearance and style.

Vinyl windows, for example, are nearly maintenance free. They do not require painting, will not rust, rot, corrode or warp and can usually be cleaned with a damp cloth and a mild detergent.

It is this easy-care convenience that makes vinyl windows so popular in remodeling. Smart homeowners also know that replacing a window is an opportunity to improve energy efficiency, frame a view, increase the amount of incoming light and enhance a home's overall appearance.

Plan Carefully

To reap these benefits, says the Vinyl Window & Door Institute, careful planning is essential. The new windows should be attractive, durable, weathertight, easy to care for and effective insulators. They should also come in a variety of sizes and styles.

THE CORDLESS rechargeable Brush Up vacuum cleaner by Eureka uses suction to clean bare floors, but also has a 2,000 r.p.m. brush roll for cleaning carpets and rugs.

As for appearance and style, here are some of the more popular types:

- Bow and bay—Both windows project outward, providing wide views. A bow is curved. A bay is straight in the middle and angled at each side.
- Double hung—This traditional style consists of two separate sash, each of which can be slid up and down for ventilation.

- Casement—Operated by a crank, hinged casements swing out to 90 degrees to offer top-to-bottom ventilation. Easy to operate, casements are ideal for hard to reach places, such as above kitchen sinks and countertops.
- Awning—It's hinged to open up and out. Used singly, in series, or stacked, awning windows help control ventilation.

- Sliding—A sliding window or patio door moves horizontally across tracks at the top and bottom of the frame. The uncluttered style makes sliding windows or patio doors especially suited to contemporary architecture.

Spring cleanup tip: Turn yard and garden debris into attractive chips and rich compost

It's amazing how much debris even a small piece of property can produce over the course of a year. Spring is the time when most homeowners take a look around and size up the damage.

The inventory may include storm-felled branches and old autumn leaves, last year's tomato vines and perennial flower stalks, piles of lawn clippings and thatch, tree and shrub prunings... organic refuse of every description.

Getting rid of this mess used to mean hard labor or bringing in expensive outside help.

A good garden shredder—a machine that grinds up garden waste—will quickly pay for itself in time and money saved.

Shredders reduce organic debris to a fraction of its original volume for easy, clean disposal. Shredded leaves, grass clippings and other lightweight material can also be turned into soil-enriching compost.

The better machines have the capacity to chip wood. Fallen limbs and tree prunings can be quickly recycled into attractive chips for pathways and borders, and for around ornamental plantings.

Perhaps the most versatile garden shredder currently on the market is Vornado's Chipp'r/Shredd'r/Mulch'r™. Available in electric or gas-powered models, it operates standing or lying on its side. This permits the operator to rake debris directly into the machine's hopper where a suction device draws it in.

A special mulching screen can be inserted when extra-fine shredding is desired. All processed material is caught in a heavy-duty nylon bag which is included.

Best of all, wheels and handgrips make the machine easily portable, to go where the job is.

The electric Chipp'r/Shredd'r/Mulch'r is powered by a 110v, 15-amp motor. It's intended for the average-sized suburban property, and is available at retail chain stores.

Homeowners with bigger yards and bigger cleanup jobs may want to consider the more powerful gasoline-engine version, available from outdoor power equipment dealers.

Shredder-owners will soon come to appreciate the wonders of compost and mulch. Leaves, kitchen wastes, grass clippings, thatch and other light material break down into rich compost most efficiently after shredding.

Compost, or "brown-gold," is invaluable in the garden, and comes in handy when reseeding bare patches in the lawn. It's easy to make, clean and odorless, and it costs nothing, because it uses your own yard's by-products.

Heavier, woody material makes attractive, fragrant chips for use around trees and shrubs, in flower borders and pathways.

Spread about two inches deep, wood chip mulch keeps weeds down, maintains soil moisture and even temperature, and gives definition to the landscape design.

FROM HEAVY BRANCHES to leaves and lawn clippings, a good garden shredder makes yard cleanup fast, clean and economical. This versatile Chipp'r/Shredd'r/Mulch'r™ from Vornado operates standing up or lying on its side.

Garden beauty: Made in shade

What if your property doesn't get much sun? Well, that may be a blessing. Many people consider shade gardens to be the most delightful, especially in hot, sunny weather when the cool shelter of a lush shade garden can refresh both mind and body.

Shade gardens offer many advantages over their sunny counterparts. Clearly, physical labor is easier in the shade than in the sun. Also, flowers almost always last longer in a shade garden.

Shade-loving plants also require less maintenance. You don't have to water as often. Fertilizing with a liquid plant food, such as Miracle-Gro, can be cut to once a month rather than the usual weekly application.

Many people are surprised at the number of lovely plants suitable for shade. You can choose among annuals, perennials, hardy bulbs, tender bulbs, ground covers, vines, evergreens, deciduous flowering shrubs and small trees. However, the perennials and the annuals are the backbone of your shade garden.

Some easily-found perennials that you can enjoy for years in your shady garden are bleeding heart, columbine, coralbells and hosta.

Annuals you will find perfect for shade are begonia, coleus, impatiens and torenia.

Three shrubs famous for their shady performances are azalea, hydrangea and rhododendron.

Vines to consider for the shade are clematis and nasturtium. Specimen trees commonly used in a shady garden are flowering dogwood and Japanese maple.

Among the many evergreens you can use in the shade, some of the better known are barberry, boxwood and camellia.

For ground cover try forget-me-not, lily-of-the-valley or sweet violet.

Don't forget that you need to protect your hands during gardening activities

Hands are a gardener's most useful tools. So make sure to care for them when you care for your plants.

A good pair of gloves can help prevent roughness and blisters which come from contact with wooden and metal handles. Gloves also help shield hands from staining soil, itchy weeds and irritating chemicals. With gloves, gardening is even more of a pleasure.

A new line of gloves helps you solve the hand problems gardening can cause. Garden Tips™ garden gloves are made by Wells Lamont, the world's largest manufacturer of gloves.

Garden Tips are specially designed to last through weeks of pruning, pinching and picking.

They're reinforced for extra strength where ordinary garden gloves wear out first: The tips of the fingers.

The fingertips of Garden Tips have an extra layer of tough Duraflex™ nitrile fabric. The palms, thumb and index finger are also made of this rugged material.

Duraflex nitrile is an exclusive Wells Lamont fabric, and resists abrasion and cuts. What's more, it outwears all other standard garden glove fabrics by as much as three to one.

That means Garden Tips last longer than cotton/vinyl, cotton/polyester, cotton jersey and vinyl gloves, so you can buy fewer pairs during the fair weather season.

Garden Tips garden gloves are also easy to work with. The Duraflex nitrile covers a smooth knit fabric that is light and flexible.

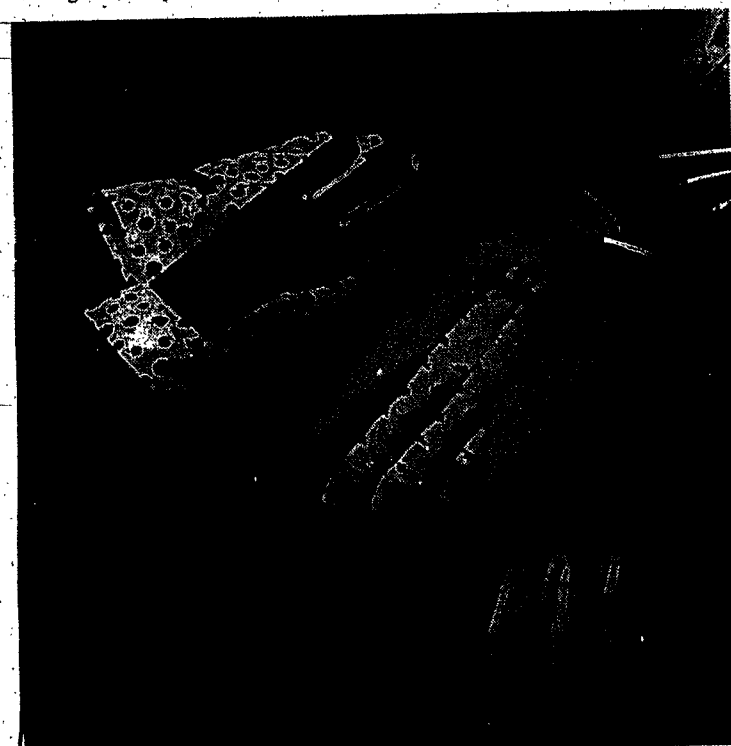

Your hands will move freely, grasp securely and handle delicate seedlings and roots with a gentle touch.

The backs of Garden Tips feature soft-as-a-petal jersey knit. They "breathe" to help keep hands cool for hours. Garden Tips are also cut to fit a woman's hand, for a better grip and greater comfort.

Dirt and moisture that can make gloves rigid and messy looking can be washed away. Garden Tips hold up to machine washing without shrinking or stiffening. And the attractive lemon-yellow Duraflex fabric and pretty flower print stay looking bright.

Garden Tips are also available with leather reinforcement. Tough pigskin in a subtle tan color gives extra protection against thorns and prickles.

Look for Garden Tips garden gloves wherever gloves are sold.

EXTRA PRACTICAL, AND EXTRA COMFORTABLE—new Garden Tips™ garden gloves from Wells Lamont are reinforced where ordinary gloves wear out first—the fingertips. They protect hands better, with tough Duraflex nitrile fabric or pigskin leather.

New asparagus variety

It's not quite the same as planting a field of corn in the living room, but a U.S. Department of Agriculture scientist has come up with a new asparagus that can do double duty in a hanging basket and on the dinner table.

Gilbert D. McCollum, a plant geneticist with USDA's Agricultural Research Service, wasn't looking for a new decorative plant when he began crossbreeding garden asparagus in 1980 with related species including the asparagus fern, sprengeri, a well-known cousin of the vegetable.

He started the experimental crossings at the Vegetable Laboratory in Beltsville, Md., in hopes of finding a way to add sprengeri's resistance to crown rot disease to garden asparagus.

Crown rot costs commercial asparagus growers about $100 million every year, according to Rutgers University extension specialist Stephen Garrison.

When sprengeri proved unamenable to cross breeding with its garden variety cousin, McCollum began crossing the vegetable strain with wild asparagus.

While he has not yet succeeded in introducing crown rot resistance, his experiments produced a new asparagus variation decorative and droopy enough to fill a hanging basket while still producing edible stalks.

"We're not talking about enough stalks to feed a family, but you could certainly get a few for your salad," said McCollum.

The new asparagus resembles the ornamentals because they usually require at least six hours of sunlight in order to thrive, she said.

McCollum said his new asparagus is a hearty plant that will grow continuously indoors, although it could have a tendency to become pot bound. "And it will survive the winter outdoors, although the foliage will die down and then come back."

amental sprengeri, but it has an advantage as a house plant because it does not shed a shower of needles with every change of light or missed watering, a problem sprengeri owners know well, McCollum said.

The Harris Moran Seed Co., already has shown interest in the ornamental possibilities of the new asparagus.

Grow a flower-shop garden

There is nothing quite so satisfying as gathering a basketful of blossoms from your own garden, and then arranging the flowers into a beautiful and fragrant bouquet.

With a modest investment of time and effort, you can revive this old Victorian idea and grow yourself a flower-shop garden.

Starting a cutting garden

Because a cutting garden is not primarily for outdoor decor, don't be concerned about its overall appearance. Just select a small inconspicuous area that receives six to seven hours of full sun a day.

Perennials—Delphinium, shasta daisy, baby's breath, bellflower (perennial or annual), dahlia, feverfew, gloriosa daisy, yarrow. A type of rose well suited to cutting is floribunda.

Taking care of the garden

A well-watered and well-fed cutting garden will produce more and better looking flowers. Annuals are very sensitive to drying, so be alert for signs of wilting. Annuals should be watered deeply at least once a week, while perennials should be watered every two weeks.

Feed your cutting garden with a liquid plant food such as Miracle-Gro. Apply according to manufacturer's label directions.

Tips on using insulation to soundproof the media room

Many homeowners are choosing to remain in their existing homes longer and, as a result, are remodeling once-unused areas such as basements into exciting living spaces.

One of the most popular types of rooms being developed today is the media room.

Vinyl Siding Can Survive Salty Shore

Though some people enjoy the healthy atmosphere and robustness of the great outdoors, that doesn't mean they want to spend their vacations fixing up their vacation homes.

Most people who own a second home are looking for a place to relax, a place that is comfortable and convenient. This means a vacation home with up-to-date products that require minimal maintenance. In addition, many vacation homes are located in seashore areas and need protection from the corrosive elements.

Since many people also view second homes as the place where they plan to spend their retirement years, says the Vinyl Siding Institute, low maintenance becomes even more important. Of all the low-maintenance building products on the market today, none is easier to care for or more corrosion resistant than solid vinyl siding.

Designed to Last

Designed to last many years, vinyl siding will not rust, pit or corrode—especially important attributes if your vacation home is near the seashore. Another is that vinyl siding doesn't require painting. Since it has color throughout, scratches won't mar its appearance. A quick rinse with a garden hose is usually enough to keep the colors clean and bright.

Available in smooth or woodgrain textures, in horizontal or vertical styles and in a range of popular colors, vinyl siding also comes with matching accessories such as gutters, downspouts, shutters, fascia, soffits and other trim for additional low maintenance, economical protection.

A vacation or second home that is easy to care for and remains new looking for years is the kind that makes vacations or retirement more enjoyable.

WINDOW GUIDE OFFERS IMPORTANT FACTS

If the great multitude of window brands, framing materials and styles overwhelm you, take heart.

A new 36-page booklet—published as a public service by the American Architectural Manufacturers Association (AAMA)—provides simple, yet comprehensive information to help consumers select, install and maintain their windows.

The AAMA label on a window or patio door indicates the product has been tested to meet industry standards for structural strength, weatherability and ability to resist water and air leakage.

Some products also bear a "thermal tested" label that shows their thermal performance rating and their ability to resist condensation.

The booklet describes how to select the proper window style for your home, and the ways in which windows can be used to save energy. It also compares the different types of frame materials—aluminum, vinyl and wood. Sliding glass doors, and insulating/storm windows and doors are also covered in detail.

For a copy of "Windows," send $2.00 to: AAMA, 2700 River Rd., Dept. RSPR, Des Plaines, IL 60018.

media room. The media room is a recreational area which often contains large screen televisions, stereo equipment, VHS and audio visual systems, recessed and track lighting, and modern, comfortable-looking furniture. It quickly is becoming one of the most popular rooms in today's home.

Do-it-yourselfers, however, who have been engaged in turning garages and basements into media rooms, are discovering that they pose unique construction considerations, especially if sound transmission throughout the rest of the house is a concern.

The CertainTeed Home Institute recommends incorporating the following soundproofing options into your walls or ceilings. Remember, you're striving for a high STC (sound transmission class) because, the higher the STC, the better the acoustics in the room.

Ordinary wall/ceiling cavities have an STC of 32-34. Installing fiber glass insulation like CertainTeed's can increase the STC to 36-38.

Using resilient metal channels and screws to mount the wallboard raises the STC about 12 points, to 44-46. If you build a double wall/ceiling with staggered studs/joists, you separate the wall surfaces on both sides and increase the wall's STC by eight points.

Added mass (weight) in partition reduces sound transmission, so using two layers of wallboard instead of one can increase the STC to 53-55.

You can use these techniques singly or in combination to reach the desired soundproofing levels or combine them all for the maximum STC.

If you have any questions about soundproofing construction, write to the CertainTeed Home Institute, P.O. Box 860, Valley Forge, PA 19482 for the free brochure "Fiber Glass Building Insulation."

USING RESILIENT FURRING CHANNELS and screws (left) to mount wallboard raises its sound transmission class (STC) by 12 points to 44-46. Double wall construction with staggered studs/joists and insulation (right) increases a standard wall's STC by eight points.

It's no secret. The Trane XL 1200 Weathertron heat pump's exclusive manufacturer's 10 year limited warranty is the longest in the industry. Most others are only 5 years. Does that make a difference? You bet it does.

The XL 1200 warranty protects both the compressor and coil, the heart and soul of your heat pump. Plus it covers 2 years on parts. That's a load off your mind.

Not only is the XL 1200 extremely reliable, it's ex-

Too good to be true?

Imagine a lawn that repels weeds, resists disease, dislikes fertilizer, stays green late in the season and—best of all—barely grows!

According to International Wildlife magazine, a Canadian geneticist says he has produced 35 lines of such a miracle grass from 17 alpine species.

The Canadian government is already using the slow-growing grasses along highways, but it will be another four years or so before they're available commercially.

Tool manufacturers keep up with gardening trends

Remember the way grandma took care of her garden? She'd spend hours each day watering, weeding and fertilizing, her flowered garden gloves protecting her hands from the heavy tools.

Gardening has changed. Grandma would be surprised to see how efficient gardening and garden tools have become.

Gardening has become the number one outdoor leisure activity in the U.S. According to a recent study done by the National Gardening Association, 78 percent of U.S. households were involved in gardening in 1986.

The new generation of gardeners has changed the look of both backyard gardens and heavy, age-old garden tools.

More and more gardeners are moving their gardens from rural backyards to apartment window boxes and condominium decks.

Manufacturers have kept up with new gardening trends and are meeting the needs of busy gardeners by re-designing their traditional tools.

The first manufacturer to listen to gardeners' needs was Gardena, a West German based company that distributes in the U.S., and which has developed the combisystem® line of garden tools.

These tools are designed as one handle with interchangeable tool heads. All tools fit on the same handle and store neatly in a small space. This idea has caught on in the industry, and several companies have similar lines.

The new tools are designed to be easy to use, comfortable and efficient. Precise engineering and specific working angles help to distribute force and stress throughout the tool, rather than straight to the gardener's back and hands.

The tool head angle allows the gardener to stand up straight while working, rather than bending over.

Tools themselves are more specialized than ever. Gardena's combisystem® includes three types of rakes for different lawn and soil conditions, three types of hoes for specific gardening tasks, and three types of cultivators for loosening and digging in hard or sandy soil.

Other tools are specialized for lawn edging, picking fruit, tilling soil, pruning branches and sweeping up when finished.

Today's tools have benefited from new technologies, making them lighter weight, stronger and more durable. The best tools have a steel core, keeping them strong but light and easy to handle.

Gardena's combisystem® uses a Duroplast coating and an iron-phosphatic coating over a steel core. Together, the layers resist both rust and corrosion.

Grandma's tool shed was always cluttered, and tool handles would stick out, right side up and upside down. Now tool heads fit neatly on a tool rack with handles beside it.

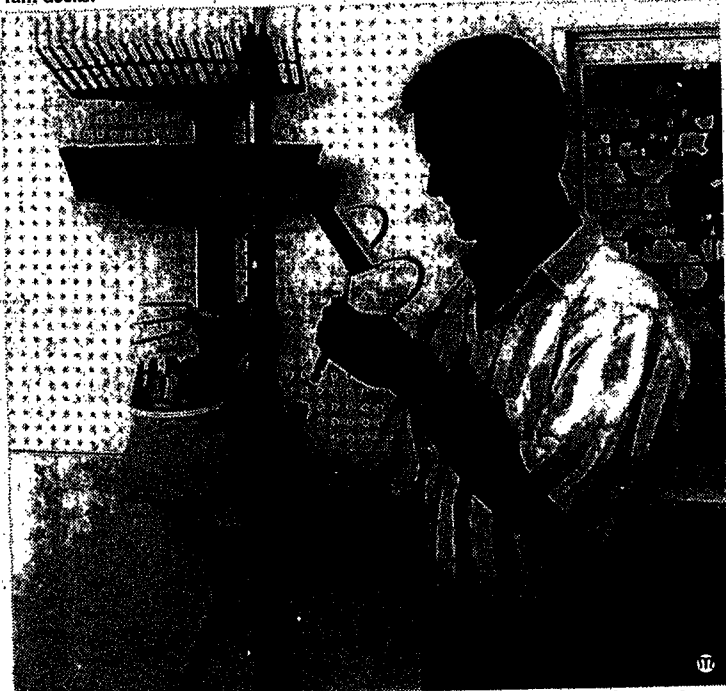

Gardena's tool rack fits six tool heads arranged vertically, with handles fitting in racks on the side. This makes it easy to store garden tools in a garage corner, apartment closet or small shed.

The popularity of gardening today has encouraged improvements in techniques and tools. Lightweight, stress-reducing, compact tools have made gardening more efficient and more enjoyable.

Although tools have changed, results are the same. There is personal satisfaction in a job well done, whether it's the first rose off a new bush or a winter's worth of home canned tomatoes.

Grandma's garden has changed, and she might not recognize some of her tools, but the things she loved about gardening are still the same.

NEW COMPACT TOOL SYSTEMS, like this one from Gardena, feature interchangeable tool heads that fit onto one handle. The tools are strong, lightweight and specially designed to reduce stress during hard work. For more information write Gardena, 6031 Culligan Way, Minnetonka, MN 55345.
